N&R conducts business with issuers of private securities. These issuers receive your monies and maintain a record of your investment(s). Pursuant to regulatory requirements, we are informing you of our position on business continuity practices. We recognize that the unexpected can and does occur; from isolated instances to major outages. We also have plans in place to protect vital information in the event of a significant business disruption. We have pre-established contingency and disaster recovery plans. Components of these plans are tested on a periodic basis to ensure their adequacy and effectiveness. We consider contingency planning to be an on-going process, requiring periodic assessments of various risks and the appropriate response(s). Our plan addresses, in detail (1) Data back-up and recovery of both hard copy and electronic records (2) All mission critical systems, including our telephone, e-mail, Internet and links to the issuers, (3) Financial and operational assessments, (4) Alternate communications between N&R and our customers, (5) Alternate communications between N&R and our employees, (6) Alternate physical location of employees, (7) Critical business constituent, bank, and counter-party impact, (8) Regulatory reporting, (9) Communications with regulators, and, (10) How N&R and the issuers will assure prompt access to your information in the event that N&R determines that it is unable to continue its business. N&R has prepared contingency plans to address unforeseen events that may occur at the local, regional or national level. In the event of a localized disruption, such as a power outage to our offices or the Dallas-Fort Worth area, we have developed plans to re-locate to an alternate location. We anticipate that the disruption to our business in this event will be minimal. If you have any questions, please contact N&R at (214) 642-6603.

FINANCIAL EXPLOITATION OF SENIORS AND SPECIFIED ADULTS

Effective February 2018, a new designation, called a trusted contact person ("TCP"), was instituted in the financial services industry. The TCP is intended to be an alternate contact/resource for the member firm, if necessary, in working with senior customers (age 65 & over) or specified adults (age 18 or older perceived to have a mental or physical impairment, who is unable to protect his or her interests). The firm may contact the TCP when the latter cannot be contacted after multiple attempts, or if it is believed there could be diminished mental or physical capacity, or if it is believed a financial exploitation may be occurring. The TCP may retrieve or relay personal important information on behalf of the customer. Interested account owners may obtain a copy of the "Trusted Contact Person" by contacting us. Additionally, FINRA has developed a Securities Helpline for seniors. If you are a senior investor, you may call 1-844-57-HELPS (844-574-3577), Mon-Fri, 9AM-5PM Eastern Time, if you feel you need assistance from FINRA, or to raise concerns about issues with your brokerage investments.
